

Request for Photos and Videos for the Discover Corrections Website

The Discover Corrections project team needs your help—we need photos and videos that focus on community corrections, institution, and jail staff making a positive difference within our multicultural world that we can feature on the Discover Corrections Website.

Discover Corrections, funded by the Bureau of Justice Assistance, and being developed by APPA, ACA, AJA and CIPP will establish a central location on the Internet for job-seekers and students to learn about entry and advanced level careers in corrections, locate job opportunities available in correctional agencies nationwide, and enhance strategies to improve the effectiveness and retention of correctional employees. Specifically, it will be a comprehensive, user-friendly website that provides information about corrections careers; provides in-depth accurate information that describes the real content of jobs in corrections provided by those who do the job every day; identifies qualifications for corrections careers; discusses second career options; provides information for those pursuing Associate or Bachelor's degrees in criminal justice and other related majors and enables recruiters to share that information; and connects interested persons to job opens.

The newly created logo and tagline “Extraordinary Choices, Extraordinary Rewards” sends a strong, positive and inviting message to those seeking employment in the corrections field.

Please look through your stock of photos, or go out and take some pictures that depict the positive side of the corrections profession. We want the photos and videos we use on the website to enhance the image of our profession to our future colleagues and to the community we serve.
